BY DURA-Farewell, awret friend and home farewell,

Adjeu each tender tie. I've left you for a dearer home Where love shall never die.

Though newer seepes growd on me now The past I've spent with you, Is wove into a garland fair— But ob, sweet friend, adien.

Our girlish dreams have passed away Like waves on ocean strand, And ere another close of day We grasp the parting hand.

Within our heart's deep core; For with the past they're hidden deep, But can return no more. Again, sweet, noble friend, farewell,

But ever in my heart I'll keep

One sacred spot for thee,

Those girlish dreams will ever keep
